A Perilous Passage—The "Fanny Fellows" in a Tight Place.

Many of our readers will be glad to hear some news of their friends in the Clio. We learn by this mail that the ship was at Tahiti on the 31st March. She had left that place on the 19th February for Valparaiso, with fine weather and strong easterly winds. On the 19th March, being then a month out, she had not reached farther than 44° south latitude and 142° west longitude, when, as her provisions were getting short, it became absolutely necessary for her to bear up and steam back to Tahiti. But, we regret to say, that before reaching that place, she was overtaken by one of those fearful burricanes which are only known to those who have navigated this part of the so-called Pacific Ocean, before the squall struck the ship; she was under very small sail, having only one of the Alert's sails set as a fore topsail (obse-reced), fore staysail and main trysail. About 11 p.m., amidst heavy squalls of wind and deafening peals of thunder, the fore yard went with a crash, carrying with it the topsail; shortly after this the main topsail and fore staysail both split and blew away, and the ship was consequently left in a very helpless condition, with a heavy sea running a'd tons of water pouring over the upper deck.
Fortunately the hatches had been battened down. This dreadful night was succeeded by a fine, calm morning; but the sea still running, the ship floundered about more than ever. The captain's galley was washed away, and on examination it was found that the main topmast was sprung, masts gone, the rudder disabled and the sternpost started. After all our "funny" friends had gone through they arrived safely at Tahiti on the 29th March, where we hear they are enjoying themselves as the "Clio's know how." Their departure was quite uncertain, as repairs would take some time, being so very short handed, and no less than forty sick with fever.

THE PORT TOWNSEND SHOOTING.—Tripp and his brother-in-law have made application to be admitted to bail and the application was being heard by Judge Darwin when the schooner Nor'wester left there on Thursday. The sailor who was struck upon the head with a gun during the affray is recovering.

SAD ACCIDENT.—A child of Mr Frank Campbell, of this city, aged about ten months, on Thursday fell from a baby's high chair to the floor and received injuries of so severe a character as to cause its death yesterday morning. We sympathise with Mr Campbell in the affliction which has fallen upon him.

CORRECTION.—The other day, in reporting Maggie Irvine's case, we stated that Mr Pennerton said that half-breeds were in the habit of inveigling men into their dens and robbing them. By substituting "barpies" for "half-breeds," the report will be found correct, our reporter having mistaken the former word for the latter.

BANK OF BRITISH COLUMBIA.—At a general meeting of the Shareholders in London a very satisfactory statement was presented by the Directors. A feeling of confidence in the future of this colony was very generally expressed, and a resolution to continue the business was adopted.

RETURN OF THE DIANA.—The steamer Diana, Captain Wright, returned yesterday from a run around the Sound with Major Macomb, U.S.A., who is on a tour of inspection to the garrisons. We are indebted to Mr Moss, steward, for a file of Portland papers.

SPRING GOODS.—The assortment of Spring and Summer goods at Victoria House is now complete, the balance of their summer shipment having been received by steamer yesterday and comprises the very latest novelties.

WE desire to call attention to the card of Dr D. P. Morgan, of San Francisco, published in another column, wherein he guarantees the successful cure of diseases of the eye, ear, mouth, &c., in from four to ten weeks.

ARRIVAL FROM SAN FRANCISCO.—The bark Australia, Captain Barrack, 16 days from San Francisco arrived yesterday. She is bound for Nanaimo to load with coal for San Francisco, and has a small freight for Nanaimo.

CHOCQUET.—Lovers of this favorite game will find the necessary implements at Victoria House (corner of Fort and Douglas streets), several sets having been received per Princess Royal.

REGATTA HATS.—Mr Adams, of Government street, has received, per Princess Royal, a splendid assortment of men's and boys' boating and regatta hats.

THE Sparrowhawk, with His Excellency the Governor aboard, sailed for Motilakalab yesterday. There is some talk of the Governor extending his trip to Sitka.

DEATH AT THE HOSPITAL.—Robert Sykes, a native of England, died yesterday at the hospital of congestion of the lungs. He was aged 29 years.

A Mrs McWells, who had broken her thigh bone by a fall, is undergoing medical treatment at the Female Infirmary.

The telegraph poles for the Esquimaux line have been laid along the ground ready for setting.

The ship Siam sailed yesterday for Burrard Inlet, where she will load with lumber for Melbourne, Australia.

The U. S. revenue cutter Lincoln coaled at Brodie & Norton's wharf yesterday, and left for the Sound in the afternoon.

BOYS' STRAW HATS.—Mr Adams, of Government street, has received a splendid assortment of men's and boys' straw hats. *

to give readings.

Who appreciates the fact that there is any great importance attached to such a commodity as a PILL? It is generally supposed that anybody can make them, as all can take them. But visit the laboratory of Dr J. C. Ayer and you will be disabused of the idea, that it is a trifle to make any medicine and adapt it to the wants of millions of men—to so adjust it to their needs, and so cure their complaints, as to make them his constant customers in all the zones. Physicians find it requires some skill to adapt their doses to a single patient; ask them if it is not an intricate problem to adjust a pur-gative pill to the necessities of untold numbers, so that it shall benefit them nearly all.
Dr Ayer's laboratory supplies 60,000 doses of his Pills per diem, or 19,000,000 a year.
Think of that, Esculapina! Well may it whiten the head of any man to administer to that amount of suffering, and especially when, as is here evident, everything is done with the extreme nicety and care—

A SURE REMEDY FOR CHILLS AND FEVERS.
AYER'S AGUE CURE never fails.

High Times among the Frisco Politicians—A Jolly Row.

The San Francisco Bulletin of the 1st inst. contains a graphic description of a fight that occurred at a meeting of delegates of the Union party. Mr Pixley, a candidate for Governor of the State, occupied the chair, and before any business had been transacted, a Mr Dann moved to adjourn, in the course of his remarks, styling the chairman as "a recently deceased candidate" for the pubernatorial chair, and hoped the meeting would adjourn out of respect to his memory.

Mr Pixley, before putting the question, characterized Mr Dann's remarks as a "base, dirty, cowardly and mean attack."

Mr Dann protested that he only meant his remarks as a joke. The motion to adjourn was carried, and here we shall let the Bulletin finish the story:

"During the meeting, Mr Dann had sat on the east side of the room. When the meeting adjourned, Mr Pixley descended from the chair on the west side, and was barely at the foot of the steps when Mr Dann approached him. Pixley raised his hand as if to warn him away, and said, 'Don't come near me, sir; I shall certainly strike you if you do.' Dann stated that he desired to apologize. Pixley said that he did not want to talk with him, and said that Dann's apology was prompted by abject, cowardice and pusillanimity. In the meantime the crowd had gathered about them and were shouting at the top of their voices. A number of outsiders who had been sitting outside of the railing during the meeting, jumped over and joined with the crowd, and the confusion was so great that it was impossible to distinguish one voice from another. The respective friends of Dann and Pixley rallied around them, some trying to urge on a collision, and others endeavoring to prevent it.
Shouts of 'Lick him, Pixley,' 'Resent it!'
'It was a deliberate insult,' 'No it wasn't!'
'You are a liar!' 'Don't back down.' 'Hit him!' were heard on every side, and the whole side was packed and jammed together in the west side of the room pushing and swaying too and fro, while several were endeavoring to quiet the mob and induce their friends to leave. A portion of the crowd stepped back and the tumult momentarily subsided, when Casey, an outsider, and Banning, delegate from the Fifth, got into an altercation. Banning said that the whole thing had been cut and dried. Casey said it was not so. Banning called Casey 'a d-d liar,' when the latter struck out with his fist, hitting Banning on the cheek, cutting a gash that bled profusely. All was confusion in an instant. Some proposed to let them fight it out, while others endeavored to prevent it.
The friends of each party rallied around their champion, and for a few minutes a scene of the wildest confusion ensued. Blows were freely given and received, and the crowd, fighting, swearing and struggling, upset chairs and furniture, and fought like dogs. Pixley mounted the table, where he could look down upon the scene and watch the exciting encounter. The head of one of the fighters, on which the hair appeared rather 'short,' bobbed up a little above the mass and in close proximity to Pixley. The temptation was too great to be resisted, and he brought his cane down upon it with a whack. The fight had then become general.
John P. H. Wentworth had in the meantime joined in, and was anxious to get at Banning, while the friends of Banning, Casey and Wentworth were trying to keep back their principals. Tim McCarthy endeavored to control the more irascible and prevent the fight. Being a patron of the ring, his delicate sensibilities in this respect were terribly shocked at witnessing so many 'foul blows,' many of them delivered 'below the belt.' But his pacificatory efforts were misconstrued, and blows were aimed at his head thick and fast. His experience in that line saved him from bruises, for he quickly dodged each fist that approached his head. The whole crowd finally struggled into the corner near the window and beside the Judge's bench, when several were knocked down, others were piled upon them, chairs were used as weapons, and a row was proceeding in Doanbrook style, each combatant apparently striking the first head that presented itself. In the meantime some one had called for the police, and about a dozen officers rushed up stairs, and in a few minutes separated the combatants.

Although the fighting was eloped, the tumult did not subside. Wentworth was spooling for a fight, and charged around with his hat on the back of his head, and his coat buttoned up, "eager for the fray." He was anxious to get at Banning, and the latter, his face and shirt-bosom covered with blood, was not averse to renewing the fight. Pixley was standing apart from the crowd, when Dann again approached him.

"Pixley told him to stand back, and said:
'Mr Dann you have taken advantage of my position before the people to indict a man, contemptible and cowardly insult upon me, knowing well that I cannot resent it in the manner it deserves. I am going before the State Convention on the 12th of June for the nomination for Governor. If I am nominated I shall let this affair pass; if not, I shall give you the worst thrashing you ever had. Now, mark my words.' The members had by this time begun to leave, yet the principal actors remained and appeared as determined as ever to fight it out on that line.
Some one turned out the lights one by one, and as the room darkened the party took its departure in knots of three and four.

"The whole affair was one of the most disgraceful that ever occurred in this city, but while the public condemn the riotous proceeding they must not lose sight of the trickery and utter disregard of their wishes, which preceded it. It was evident from the first that the petition of citizens to have such changes made in the primary election arrangements as would give a fair expression of the Union voters of this city, would be disregarded. Their requests were not even treated with decency or respect. When Mr Reynolds attempted to reply to the remarks of Mr Dann, he was constantly interrupted by cries of "Question" and motions to adjourn, making such confusion and noise that he could not be heard. The Boys had evidently determined that no business should be transacted, and were confident in their increased strength. It was rumored on the street yesterday that they had 14 votes, but it was not known where the defection existed until the extraordinary course of Mr Dann last evening revealed the true state of affairs.
The result of their disgraceful conduct, both before and after adjournment, will have the effect of urging the respectable Union men of this city to the polls on election day, that the Union party of San Francisco may be wrested from the control of unprincipled and unscrupulous men, who seek only to further their private interests."
